Hi Kaitlyn,

Thank you so much for providing this insight. I am sure it will help. I will read it over more and get back to you with any needed follow up questions.

Much appreciated!

Wayne

Hi Wayne,

Thank you for the diligence to proactively seek answers for potential lines of inquiry. We can help clarify several of these points; however, some of the historical details are best addressed by the staff in CFE who were directly involved and are currently on vacation. We can gather that additional information upon their return.

In the broader context, Disabled Students Programs & Services (DSPS) is a categorical program administered by the California Community Colleges Chancellor's Office (CCCCO). As such, Folsom Lake College receives annual DSPS and Access to Print (ATP) allocations, with the expectation that these funds(per Prop 98) are used in a timely manner to support students and maintain compliance with program requirements. ATP and Electronic Information funding, covers braille, alternate media, and assistive technology.

Upon my arrival, I learned from staff and faculty about longstanding challenges within CFE, including increasing demand for services, delayed backfilling of leadership positions (including the director and supervisor positions), limitations in proctoring space, and the need to address compliance concerns.

As the college's unspent categorical balances continued to grow, they became visible through the Chancellor's Office's Student Services Annual Reporting (SSARCC) process, which provides statewide financial and program oversight. The significant carryover balances also drew attention from District Office grants staff and ultimately the CCCCO. This increased scrutiny was not solely related to fiscal management but also to ensuring the college was making appropriate progress toward meeting DSPS program and accessibility requirements.

On February 10, 2026, the CCCCO formally notified the college that, due to excessive carryover balances, a spend-down plan was required by February 25. On March 26, the Chancellor's Office further advised that, without sufficient progress, the college was at risk of losing future ATP funding and receiving a substantially reduced DSPS allocation.

In response, I convened a meeting with the Dean of Student Success, Director of CFE and DSPS Supervisor on April 2 to develop a comprehensive spending and compliance plan. That plan documented pending expenditures, anticipated purchases, current-year costs, projected FY27 personnel expenses, and planned use of carryover funds. Following a meeting with the CCCCO on April 10, to review the revised proposal, the FY 2026-27 allocation was reinstated contingent upon the college making substantive progress toward the approved spending plan including demonstrated infrustrature investment.

This sequence of events is the basis for the references to "increased scrutiny" and the urgency to move forward with the necessary purchases and facility modifications. The objective is both to ensure that students receive services in facilities that meet applicable accessibility and program requirements and to demonstrate responsible stewardship of categorical funding so future allocations are not jeopardized.

As noted above, we can supplement this information with additional historical details from the CFE team once they return.

In partnership,
KBL

Subject: Questions about DSPS Compliance Challenge

Hi Greg and Kaitlyn,

In both the verbal and email communication surrounding the need to bring our DSPS proctoring service into compliance, it has been communicated that this is a time sensitive issue. As such, I want to be the most prepared I can be to guide the needed conversations with faculty as they return from being off contract. I appreciate the detailed email you prepared together and sent on Monday, July 13th, as it will allow me to speak to the work that is needed to bring our DSPS proctoring services into compliance.

Thinking about future conversations and anticipating questions that will naturally arise, I thought I would be proactive and ask these questions now. Please provide me with answers to the following questions:

- How long has Folsom Lake College's administration and staff been aware that our DSPS proctoring service have been out of compliance with both state and federal guidelines?
- In the July 13th email it was stated, "There has been increased scrutiny regarding the college's compliance, and failure to address these issues would not only negatively impact our ability to appropriately serve our students but also risk loss of funding."
    - Where is this increased scrutiny coming from? The state level? The federal level? District administration? Other?
    - How and when was the Folsom Lake College Administration made aware of this increased scrutiny?
    - How and when was the Folsom Lake College Administration notified that there would be a potential loss of funding if the compliance issues were not addressed?
- President Pimentel has mentioned in both of our meetings together that Folsom Lake College has received funding to purchase equipment and modify space in order to bring our DSPS proctoring services into compliance with both state and federal guidelines. He has also conveyed that these funds need to be spent "soon" and can only be spent on the needed expenditures to ensure that we are compliant in our DSPS proctoring services.
    - When were these funds issued to Folsom Lake College?
    - Who issued these funds?
    - When were these funds actually received by Folsom Lake College?
    - What is the deadline for the expenditure of these funds?

I appreciate the time you will take providing responses to the above questions. Having all the information ahead of time will naturally lead to more informed and efficient conversations with faculty and other constituents that will be affected by the outcome of whatever decision is ultimately made in our repurposing process.

Thank you for your leadership!

Wayne
